

English

Unit 2 - Sport

Monday 21st September 2026

WALT:

Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

I can complete sentences in
the first
conditional.

I can write my
own sentences
in the first
conditional.

I can write my
own sentences
in all the different forms
of the first
conditional.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Retrieval Practice

1 Joe messages to his friends on his phone.

makes

receives

sends

2 Joe usually puts his phone in his jacket when he goes out.

pocket

bag

case

3 When Joe has some spare , he plays games on his phone.

moment

time

hour

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Starter – Correct the mistake in this sentence.

I think if you will join the sports club,
you will make lots of friends.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Starter – Correct the mistake in this sentence.

I think if you will join the sports club, you will make lots of friends.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Starter – Correct the mistake in this sentence.

I think if you join the sports club,
you will make lots of friends.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

The first conditional

The sentence from the starter was written in the first conditional.

I think if you join the sports club, you will make lots of friends.

What do you think the first conditional is used for?

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

The first conditional

The first conditional is used to refer to a likely outcome to a present or future situation.

If you study hard, you will do well in the test.

Present or future situation.

Likely outcome.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

The first conditional

Use this sentence structure to share some first conditional sentences with your partner.

If + present simple + then + future simple

Examples:

If you eat too many sweets, you won't eat your dinner.

If you don't brush your teeth, you will need to go to the dentist.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

The first conditional

You can also use “unless” instead of “if you don’t”.

If the basketball team don’t improve their defense, the won’t win the championship.

Unless the basketball team improve their defense, the won’t win the championship.

The basketball team won’t win the championship unless they improve their defense.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Complete these tips using the first conditional.

1. If you eat enough vegetables, you will _____.
2. If you eat too much before exercise, _____.
3. You'll feel tired if you _____.
4. Unless you _____, you won't have strong bones.
5. If you _____, you'll _____.

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Write your own tips using the first conditional.

Use all the different forms of the first conditional.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____
7. _____
8. _____

WALT: Begin to use if clauses in first conditionals.

Read your partner's sentences.

Be prepared to read your favourite to the class and justify why it's your favourite.

If you work hard, we will have time to play a game.